Graphisoft announces new CEO

BUDAPEST, February 21, 2024 — Graphisoft, the leading Building Information Modeling (BIM) software solutions developer for architecture and multidisciplinary design, has announced that Huw Roberts, who has led the company since 2019, is leaving by mutual agreement. Daniel Csillag has been appointed CEO of Graphisoft with immediate effect.

“With his industry expertise and many years of experience, Huw has played a key role in the success of Graphisoft in recent years,” said César Flores Rodríguez, Chief Division Officer, Planning & Design and Digital Twin, at Nemetschek Group. “We thank Huw for his contribution and commitment to the Nemetschek Group and wish him all the best for the future.”

Daniel Csillag was part of the Nemetschek Group from 2017 to 2022 as CEO of Nevaris and General Manager of Bluebeam (DACH region). During this time, he was also responsible for acquiring 123erfasst, the mobile cloud solution for data collection on construction sites. For the past two years, he was Chief Revenue Officer at Thinkproject, a construction and asset management software provider.

“I’m excited to join Graphisoft and a team that has already provided such a great foundation to build upon,” said Daniel Csillag, CEO of Graphisoft. “I look forward to strengthening our innovative portfolio and delivering value to our customers around the globe.”

Daniel started his career at Transtec and Bechtel, where he led international business activities. His first position as CEO was at Exact Software, a specialist in business software, including the construction sector. After the sale of Exact’s German business to Sage, he took on the positions of Vice President of Enterprise Sales and Managing Director of the Payroll and HR divisions.
